THIRD DISTRICT. The Third Assembly District Republican Con vention will meet at the Court House in Janes-ville, September 12th, at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing two delegates to attend the State Convention in Madison, September 21st. Each town will be entitled to the usual number of delegates. By order of Committee.

S. C. CARR, G. W. LAMONT, D. F. SAYRE,

The Wisconsin Democrats have plenty of spathy, but no issue and no prospects of getting any candidates.

Vice President Arthur has gained during the past two months more than he lost during the senatorial contest in New

A number of Republican newspapers in this state are disputing as to whether General Rusk is a "ring" candidate. That matter should be left to the conven-

While President Garfield continues to keep the better hand of death, it would be well for cortain newspapers to stop discussing the make-up of General Arthur's cabinet.

Congressman Deuste says he has the most cogent reasons why he should not accept the gubernatorial nomination at the hands of the Democratic party. The people have the most cogent reasons why he should not be elected if he accepted the nomination.

It has already been stated that Mrs. Garfield's find has reached $156,000. One hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars in government bonds were purchased for her which cost $145,281.25, and coretificates therefor given to her. The annual interest on these bonds is $5,

The man who edits the Quincy Horald is anxious to obtain notoricty at any price. He is as heartless as "Brick" Pomeroy was in 1865, and as fully bent on becoming known as a friend of assassination. The more the papers quote from the Herald and attack the editor. the more his vanity is tickled. The only way to silence him and give him disappointment and mortification, is to let him alone. By paying no attention to him, he would soon become disgusted with himself and quit.

that in the hour which seem to be death, there may be hope, it is related that after the Prince of Wales had been given over by his physicians, he began to mend. For a week the English nation had watched the bulletins with ever-increasing anxiety. On Sunday, the 10th day of December, 1871—the day set apart for national prayer for his recovery -the doctors fairly gave the Prince up. From that hour he began to improve. On the Monday morning the bulletin which it was expected would quench the last ray of hope gave tidings of slight amendment, and in a week the patient was pronounced out of danger. Romembering this remarkable case, the country will still cling to the hope that President Garfield will recover.

The Republicans throughout the country will rejoice over the defeat of L. B. Sessions for renomination to the New York Senate. That he is a bold, bad man is clearly shown from the published record. Notwithstanding the fact that he is a notorious speculator in legislative votes, a man devoid of personal honor. not having a shadow of political principles to be commended, and no honorable motive in anything he does, he came near carrying off the nomination in such intelligent counties as Chantauqua and Cattarangus and was only defeated after fifty ballots had been taken The Ropublicaus of that district did themselves honor in scaling his political doom, but they would have been entitled to greater praise had they settled the matter at the start and without any cere-

Rev. Dr. A. S. Walsh, of New York, has revived the story that President Taylor was actually physically assassinated. The Hon. John A. Bingham, one of the ablest lawyers of this country, and assistant Judge Advocate in the trial of the conspirators in 1865, who were tried for the assassination of President Lincoln, said he once investigated the manner of Precident Taylor's death, and he was satisfied that he died by the hand of an assessin. It will be remembered by the older readers of the Gazette that President Taylor was taken suddenly and mysteriously ill on the 4th of July, 1850, and died on the 9th. The disease was called billions fever at the heretofore, both in his mauner and contime, but there were many who really believed he had been poisoned. After the investigation which he made several | night, he said:

years ago, he related the circumstances that two men, one of whom was Jeff Davis, once went to President Taylor at the dead of night and told him there were two bills before him for approval, and they said, "If you do not sign them the South will hold you personally responsible," "Old Rough and Ready," the hero of many battles, told the visitors that if the South made any trouble he would raise an army and go down there and crush them. Taylor was taken suddenly sick the next day and after his death Fillmore signed the bills. Judge Bingham says he is thoroughly convinced after a very careful investigation that President Taylor was assassin-

DESPONDENCY DISPERSED.

The News from the President Produces a Marked Effect in New York Business Circles.

New York, Aug., 29-The change for the better in the case of the President, as indicated to-day by the dispatches from Washington and the utterances of Dr. Frank H. Hamilton, who just returned from the bedside of the chief magistrate, has produced a marked effect on every side, and the despondency of past few days has place to gleam · · · n of hope once more. In Wall street, in particular, was the glad news the source of great comment and of congratulation. This feeling was also perceptible in the tone of the market, which was strong. In the mercantile and other circles there was a feeling of relief, accompanied by the fear that the present favorable condition of the President would give way to a fatal reaction. "We hope for the best," said a well-known banker, "but we are also prepared for the worst. The President has exhibited marvelous endurance in these long and weary days, and if, as the bulletins indicate, the worst is passed at present, it may be that he will be able to pull through. God grant that he may."

General Arthur remained at his residence of this morning, receiving but few tion of the President would give way to a fatal reaction. "We hope for the

DR. HAMILTON.

Ro Has Great Faith in the Ustimite Recovery of the President.

New York, Aug. 29.-Dr. Frank Hamlton, who has just returned from Washington, was found this evening in his library by an associated press reporter.

The doctor said he had been so misrepresented in the interviews concerning the President that he should hereafter exact of every reporter a copy of what he said before the latter left. He had found sayings quoted that he had never uttered, and if he found that a reporter made use of any expressions beyond the copy left, he would not accord him a second interview. The reporter then asked: "Are you reported correctly in an evening paper to-day that you had no doubt whatever but that the President would recover. resident would recover.

Dr. H.—No, sir. I would not say that of any patient, and much less of the President, in whose case it is poculiarly Trosacent, in whose case it is popularly difficult to make a safe prognostication. The reporter misunderstood me. I said I believed he would get well, but that belief is not an absolute assurance. It is simply my faith.

FEARS OF RECOVERY.

New York, Aug. 29.—Dr. Wm. A Hammond was called upon by a reporter this morning sold, in reply to a request for his opinion upon the unexpected improvement in the President's condition, said: "The subsiding of the swelling of the parotid gland means either nothing or very much. In the former case should it be unattended by a marked improvement throughout his system, it will place him in precisely the same position as he was before the inflammation originally started. It will give him relief, no doubt, but that is all. Should it be accompanied by a decrease of temperature and accompanying indications of ature and accompanying indications of amelioration, then he will be on a fair road to the end, which we all hope so fervently that he will reach. I am not especially encouraged by those later rethese later re but constantly hope few sentences may ports, their that something. I am of opinion that the swelling of the parotid gland was merely a premonitory symptom of pyomia. This will, I think, be followed by abmean scesses in the lungs and various organs, and by swellings in the joints where the poison has been distributed. I am still of the same opinion I have been, and before I change it there must occur some more distinctive feature of improvement than the discharge of the gland."

A FATAL STORM.

SAVANAH, Ga. Aug. 29.—One of the most destructive storms which ever visited the South Atlantic coast prevailed here Saturday night. Owing to the prostration of the wires full particulars have not yet reached us, but enough is known to warrant the statement that the loss of life and property is very great. The wind blow over Savannah at the rate of forty miles an hour, unroof-wreeked, and the patients barely escaped. Many of them were badly bruised. Sailing craft in Savannah bay suffered badly, and many persons on board perished. The lose of life among the colored recule on the rice plantation and ished. The lose of life among the colored people on the rice plantation and along the river and bay is reported to have been very great. All the people in one of the islands in the river perished. At Port Royal, Beautort, and other points along the South Carabana court points along the South Carolina coast hundreds of persons are believed to have perished, and millions of dollars' worth of property was washed away.

AGRICULTURAL FAIRS.

The Daty of the People in Supporting and Attending Agricultural gence, the industry, the wealth and fashion of an age of progress and of fluancial prosperity, such as Americans never saw before. Not only so, they give ensployment to thousands of men, and add millions of dollars to the sum total of American industries. In fact, there is scurcely a point of resemblance between the agricultural fairs of to-day and those of ten years ago, when pumpkins and potatoes formed the basis of the show. To-day, horses are the centre of attrac-To-day, horses are the centre of attraction; Maud S. 2:10½, St. Julion 2:11½, Little Brown Jug, 2:11¾, Sleepy Tom 2:12¾, and Mattie Hunter 2:12½, being the drawing eards. Besides these, this year, Miss Williams from England, and Miss Cook, from Colorado, will cross swords in great twenty with Miss Cook, from Colorado, will cross swords, in great twenty-mile equestrian contests, and, coming together in a heated spirit of rivalry, the Pacific slone declaring in favor of Miss Cook, and the whole of Europe backing. Miss Williams, the riders of the two continents will undoubtedly create the most approved flutter, among the ladies especially, that has trapspired since the pecially, that has transpired since the days of Diana Vernon; moreover, ours is a country in itself, fitted for a grand empire, and so far as our horses are conpire, and so far as our horses are con-cerned, Europe is just now ready to ac-knowledge their superiority. Iroquois has wrestled the honors of the Derby from our English cousins, and Foxhall has secured the Grand Prix de Paris. Nothing now remains for Americans to do, but to give color to and popularize the turf horse, to secure the grandest re-sults through this branch of our indussults through this branch of our industries. On no part of the "wide, wide world" is there a country which contains so many elements essential to the presperity of mankind, and were it sundered from every other, and were it sandered from every other, dependent entirely on its own resources, in a few years every want of civilized man could be provided for. Therefore, we make this appeal to the good judgement of our readers, believing that they will now leave no stone unturned, which will aid in popularizing the fairs of 1881. Hitherto, there has been great apathy on the part of those who should have had the most interest in these fairs, namely, the great mass of small farmers; but, from now on, we shall have unbounded confidence that this class, with all others, confidence that this class, with all others, will vie with each other in giving tone and countenance to our great agricultural fairs, so that the 10,000 attendance will be swelled to 20,000, each mite adding to a successful ending.

From Danton's Spirit of the Turf. The day of agricultural fairs is now upon us, and, as there is no success, no good results in any department of agriculture, or science, or art, without the co-operation of the press, we can scarcely hope for fair weather, even without intercossions and support from men who edit the journals of the day, and shape the course of events. For this good reason, we now call upon our brethren of the press, to sharpen their instruments of war, roll up their sleeves, write a word, and send it from house to house, until no man can say, "Why, I never knew their was to be an agricultural fair at their was to be an agricultural fair at Chicago, or Lawrence, or Minneapolis, or Marcingo, or Waukegan, or Janesville, or Fond du Lae, or Dubuque, or Pittsburgh, or Dayton, or Burlington, or Topeka, or indeed any other place." I'm in love, but I've never told her,
Never told the maider-k love:
I lie in the long green grass and behold her,
'As she swings dir day in the boughs above.
I'm a student with toll o'erladen,
And a student over should books prefer,
But she's such a darling, dainty maiden,
My thoughts go swinging away with her.

See saw!
Margery Daw!
Up in the apple tree Margery swings;
And I. lying under,
Watch her, and wonder
Watch the ditty that Margery sings.

And she goes swinging, and I go slaving.
Turning the leaves of a musty book,
Dat surely that was her white hand waving,
And surely that was my darling's took.
A perfect fortress of books I sit in,
Ethics, economy, politics, law.
But all the pages I vow were written
By that little philosopher, Margery Daw.

See saw!

Up in the apple tree Margery swings;
And I, lying under,
Watch her and wonder
What is the ditty that Margery sings.

The light is fading, the day grown older,
And mow the westering sun is gone,
And Margery, I no more behold her;
In the deep cool grass I lie alone.
For Margery, she was a sunbeam only,
And I was a fool for all my pains,

BEFORE A FALL.

One Saturday evening 1 sat upon the door-step waiting for John and Jennie. We had been to choir-meetings togethor all summer long-Jennie was such lived just over the hill from our house, and John lived just beyond that. She way from home. I had a presentiment of mischlef the moment I caught sight of mischlef the moment I caught sight of them both. I should not have thought of starting without them, and I sat quietly, not noticing the flight of time. I was thinking what a lovely evening it was, and that mother's china asters were coming into bloom and the cohemans are successful. china asters were coming into bloom and the crab-apples were ripening, and that I always thought crab-apple jelly the prettiest mother over made. I was as peaceful as the old cat that came and curled up beside me, and had no more thought than she of its being late.

But suddenly I heard Jennie's voice shit suddenly I heard Jennie's voice calling me; it sounded so sharp, out of the quiet, that I was really startled. By going to the head of one of these I saxious voice calling:

She had paused at the gate and was saying: "Como, Phebel?" I knew in a minute from her tone that something had worried her. I was wondering what it might be as I rose and went down the path, and I suppose I went a little slowly.

I knew she was glad to be near her that night, and I knew she was glad to have me, she little slowly.

I knew she was glad to have me, she was grand you run away from me? I what made you run away from me? I

"I don't know," she answered, sigh. She washertly. "Don't stand staring, Phobe! till he came.

"What is the matter"

"Why, of course. Didn't I tell you it was late?"

"Well, you needn't have got mad about it. Jeanie!"

"Well, you needn't have got mad about it. Jeanie!"

"I didn't," said sho;—"or at least I was a so got mad at myself for waiting. "There he are tensor how you should ever wait for John or expect him to come with us overy night just because he lives next door. He's never said myord about always escorting us. He's just let it be a mafter of course, and I'm not going to have it so any longer. He might want to go bome with some of the other girl's some time, and then just think how ridiculous we should be charged. There he sat, the same old John, and I couldn't believe he was a traiter. Yet men to start real early, and you may wait for bin if you like. I'll not expose myself to being slighted again. I don't doubt he's gone the other wny, by East Side, tongit."

Now Jessio Sears lived on East Side, tongit, "More the said nothing about it and kept out to ther wny, but overyhody know—except Jennie—who might have known it she planned—who might have known it of her way, but overyhody know—except Jennie—who might have known it she planned—who might have known it saw gull and the should notted to make an impression upon. He said nothing about it and kept out of her way, but overyhody know—except Jennie—who might have known it she planned—who more with the facts.

"Jonnie Morris," said I, "you know just as well as I do that you're the only yell and be not have an one and send the reso," she said.

"Jonnie Morris," said I, "you know just as well as I do that you're the only yell in the thirth the histown hole on the said. She did not feel the send in the facts.

"Jonnie Morris," said I, "you know just as well as I do that you're the how here were to go anywhere with. I don't see how you have so mean as to talk about him. I was not have an one of the control where the hard the said the said that ha

Well, what can we do?"

"Why, somebody has got to go down, you know, John. He was as wild as a nadman. They left him crashing the dishes upon the floor and putting the bed-clothes and furniture into the fire. Maggie is afraid he'll set the house aire, and he's in a fair way to do it, you know, and burn himself up in it."

"The best thing he could do," muttered John tered John.

"It's dreadful you should have to go. dear," said his mother, pityingly, "and just when you are all ready for meeting. The girls will be waiting for you, lear," same when you are all remay ing. The girls will be waiting for you, too. But you'll feel sorry enough for Maggie, poor thing, when you see her.

And there's no time to be lost. You can hear Peter cursing and throwing in the can't stir. What shall we do?"

By this time I had caught her excitement and was near to giggling as insanely as she. "What shall we do?" I share were approaching the beard. As John and Buell were ready to start Maggie said: "Shure, sir, if ye see me cow in the read, wad ye place drive her back forninst ye? Peter left the gate open when he come in, and I Jennic knew them in a minute and that John did not see the cow. She was like the rest of the McCreerys, unexpected in her movements. But Jennie and I saw her, grazing along the road-side, with her head turned the other

"Hurry, Phobe!" she cried; "don't was so nervous. I hoped the singing would quiet her, and so it did for a lit-"Hurry, Phebe!" she cried; "don't you know we are late?"

But, instead of hurrying, I stopped short, for I suddenly saw that John was not with her.

"Where's John?" I asked.

"Ul don't know" she appropriate sight of the first state of the content of the first show and then, toward the door, and occasionally she would give a little of the first show?" I cried, "I'm so glad you've come?" I cried, "Jonnie is hurt?" She was uneasy every minute nie when she speaks that way, with her chocks red and her eyes snapping. But I am not; it only makes me a little cooler than I was before. I just stood still. She shan't drive me if I do lovo her.

"Suppose we are late?" I said; "I think we might wait a little for him, just for once."

"You can do it, then," said she, and walked straight on.

I looked up the road and reflected. John was not in sight. If anything had happened to detain him it was Jennic's company he would be sorry to miss, so my waiting could do him no good. I might as well go with Jonnic. I ran and ching the refore she had gond far. I suppose it molified her to have made me run, for she laughed a little as I came up. "You didn't wait as long as I did!" she said.

"Then you did wait awhile?"

"Well, you needn't have got mad believe it Lonnie" it was receif, and John was obliged to stoop it to you need to have and child look pretty that night. To-night she wore a new pink mustin dress; a thin, fleecy white she way was round her shoulders, and dress; to say nothing of having wanted Jennie's company all the eventing and missed it. And sometimes to be to we use them. She was all smiles and brightness. We usually sat the front row, and Jessie spied where we were to-night the moment she came in match to look at her. I hope it was not wrong for me to have taken a glance at the two faces that match lighted up. I have been more feeling in his voice if she had been his every bit of faith in her. She had been lying across the warm gravel and we had run full against her.

When I began to recover my wits I heard Jennie laughing in a weak, hysterical way; then she began to sob, and then to half skriek again with laughter. I slowly picked myself up, lame and bruised, and very much surprised to find that no bones were broken. Half the plaited flounce of my dress that had got over the cow's horn was ripped off and dangling under my feet.

"You mustn'tsay so, you know, dear.

I hate to have you go down there, but it's dreadful to think of the poor, raving creature just left to himself."

"Where are the others?" said John.

"Why Bess and Mark have gone to the fair in Barton. There's only Buell at home, and he's hardly old enough to go down there alone."

"No," said John. throwing off his coat. "I suppose I've got to go with him. Tell him to get a rope. We'll have to tie the wretch and then send for the Sherift."

But Jennie was too impatient. "Please don't stop, Phœbe," she said. "It's not your place to do it, and we're so late alroady."

It was so late that all the moan of pain for argument let him find us—it's John!"

"I'd don't care if it is, I'm glad of it, and just remember, if he was going over to East Side with Jossie Sears, he'd not be here now. You've been too quick, Jennie, there's some mistake."

I felt seemed touchy and unnerved. I felt seemed as if the very crickets were smothered by the dark and the sorry for her, and thought we would talk about something else.

I will explain now what had detained John. We learned about it in good time. There was an Irish family living a little way from his father's house. They were always in trouble, and always keeping the neighbors in trouble. That night, just as John was ready to start for meeting, his mother came to his door looking quite distressed.

"John," she said," "Maggie Mo-Creery and her children are in the kitchen, and Peter has come home drunk against the gravel beyond. We could not recover our senses before the heap over which we had fallen began to rise under us. I was rolled to one side, with a dull pain through left lung and and shoulders. I lost my spirits, appetite and color, and could with difficulty keep up all day. BUBNERT'S COUGAINE.

A Lady's Hate Saved by Its Use.

When Malok el Adib left the home of his childhood that he might go West and salt a mine and grow up with the country after unleading upon some smart fellows down in the provinces, his mother case him the provinces, his mother gave him forty pieces of silver, and made him promise never to tell a lie. "Go, my son," she said, in a voice husky with hairpins, "go; we may never meet again, and if we do I will probably be married before you come back and it wouldn't be pleasant for you to live at home and have to call some square-headed old-mufti 'Pa.'' The youth went, and the party he traveled with was assaulted by road agents, who shot the driver, cut open the mail-bags, blew open the express-box and went through the passengers. When one of the robbers asked the boy how much he had, he replied with surprising candor: "I have ten dinars sewed up in my garments.' The robber laughed a hoarse, guttural laugh in the United States language and passed on to an elderly man, think-ing the boy lied. Another robber ask-ed the boy the same question; and, re-ceiving the same answer, laughed as did his comrade. Finally the Chief called Malek to him and asked what he had.

The boy replied:
"I have already told two of your people that I have ten dinars sewed up in my gray clothes." The Chief ordered his clothes to be ripped open and found the money.

"And how," he asked "came you to tell this?" "Because," replied the boy, "I would not be false to my mother, whom I solemnly promised to never tell alie."

"Aw, cheese that," the robber chief replied, "that's too diaphanous, stripling; it won't laundry. Stand him on his head, fellows, and tap him for all he's worth." So the robbers stood Malek on his head, and pounded the soles of his feet with the bastinades until he disgorged from various secret pockets, belts. double shoe soles, and from the straw and cushions of the coach, 125 dinars, a gold watch, a lot of Eric stock, seven a glord water, a for of Eric stock, seven railroad passes, some promissory notes, a new Dorringer, photographs of Maud Granger and Sara Bernhardt, a marked poker deck, a flask of Old Cabinet whisky, some chewing tobacco, a diamond pin and a blood-stone ring, a package of counterfeit 10's, and a slung-shot. They then cut off his neck and tossed him over into the canyon.

"That," said the robber chief, as he pocketed the bulk of the swag, "will teach him to keep his promise to his mother the next time. Always play awful close on a man who tries the honesty lay on a road agent."—Bur-lington Hawkeye.

Bridling a Calf.

In an unlucky hour Mr. Rice gave our Sammy a bridle for the little colt. Fortunately the colt was decile, and soon learned to lead beautifully, and no bad results came from the experiment except when the colt was coaxed up the woodshed steps and quite demol-ished them, and had to take a flying leap out of the door. A boy is not half a boy who is not constantly making himself trouble. The colt was brought into subjection too easily by half, and Sammy looked for more worlds to conquer, and decided to try the calf. He had heredity to combat. Neither the calf's father nor mother had been bridled, and he didn't see why he should be. The calf was petted, and coaxed, and cornered; but the sight of the bri-dle sent him flying down the lane, bawl-ing at the top of his voice. The boy's spirit was aroused. All advice to let the calf alone was answered with scorn. Wrath alternated with tears, with occasional gleams of hope, inspired by some new plan of action. The calf was shut in the barn-yard, but the boy came out worsted. At last the the boy came out worsted. At last the father yielded to importunities and consented to help. If ever an animal was inspired by the Evil One that calf was. He seemed to know the odds were against him, and that strategy and not force was called for. He didn't exactly stand patiently, but he made no effort to run away. He turned this way and that way, and rolled up his great, innocent eyes in a questioning manner. nocent eyes in a questioning manner. No one would have mistrusted it, but he was watching his chance. He re-jected the bit and the excitement grew. "Hold on to him, Sammy; don't le him go. There, we'll have him bridled in a minute. Can you hand me that

Here was the looked-for opportunity His heds went up for the benefit of the boy, his head did the business for the man, the bridle landed on the fencepost, and

The catt, oh, where was he? The boy picked himself up, and would have made a remark, but he saw his father could say enough for them both. The latter vowed, white stanching the flow of blood from his nose, that he would never try to bridle another calf, and the boy never asked him to. Do you suppose for a moment that the project was given up? No, indeed; boys are not made of that kind of stuff. In less than a week that calf was walking up and down the road with a bridle on, and Sammy at the end of the strap. A committee of boys did it in about fifteen minutes. The calf never entirely forgot his tricks, but took advantage of every unguarded moment, and saved the boys in the neighborhood from getting into lots of mischief by exhausting their superfluous spirits chasing after him. — Washington Republican.

BRIEFARTS.

-Breezy. -Only one day more in August. -The wind to day had a big blow-out. -This is the last week of vacation for school children.

-A trotting matines is to take place at the Driving park to morrow afternoon. -It has been a good day for anyone to pick up hats. They were flying about in all directions.

-The strong winds have caused some trouble among the telephonic wires several being blown down and others crossed. -A tree with a trunk fully eighteen inches in diameter, located near A. A. Dresser's house, in the First ward, was broken off by the wind this morning. -It's been a hard day to work on the bridge. The men had their hands full hanging on to their hats, and clinging to the timbers to keep from falling oif. -To-night there will be another out door open air concert in the park, to be followed by a dance. There is the promise of an enjoyable time, if the weather is

-The room in the court house, and located just opposite the Municipal court room, has been cleared out and cleaned up, and is to be the jury room for that court. -There was a smash-up at the Northwestern depot last night, which made a total wreck. It was the four-wheeled baggage truck, which the wind run off the platform, demolishing it. -A base ball contest between the Janesville Mutuals and the Brodhead nine is promised Thursday afternoon at the Driving park. It will be an interesting one, as both nines are strong.

-The man Hanley, who was injured by a fall at the round house, still lies at the Spence house in rather a critical condition. He is conscious most of the time, and seems to be holding his own, but not gaining much, it any. -The April term of the Circuit court has not adjourned yet, it being held open for the finishing of a few cases which are hanging fire. The final adjournment on next Monday Judge Conger opens the term at -A Milton woman has been arrested for keeping a house of clouded fame, and of power to move a loaded car. Two having waived examination is bound over to the Municipal court, which will car quite comfortably. Trusting you will consider her case some day during the meet with the success your pusher de. latter part of the week. She is to be tried by jury. -The Janesville Guards expect to meet next Thursday night at their old armory and after their meeting will shoulder arms and march to Myers' new block and capture their new armory and take possession thereof, with the expectation of remaining there permanently. -County Clerk Morgan is figuring up the assessment rolls of the several towns and getting the necessary mathematical work done preparatory to the meeting of the committee on equalization, which he will call together in a few days. The tardiness of two or three towns in sending in their returns is causing a delay just now.

-Remember the business men's meeting this evening at the council is shown by the better carriage chamber at 8 o'clock, at which time the committee will report. Janesville needs: to wake up on the manufacturing question, and all interested in the city's growth and prosperity, and all seeking a profitable and safe investment for spare money, should be in attendance.

-There's a great satisfaction in keeping insured. There's a still greater satisfaction in feeling that the insurance is placed in a company that can pay, and will pay in case of loss. Mark Ripley offers his patrons just such insurance and no other, and those who need fire or life insurance, or accidental policies, in fact any kind of good insurance, will do well to put their risks in his hands.

-M. Hanson & Co., have sold their retail business to the Janesville Farniture Company, and are to give their undivided attention to manufacturing and wholesale business. The Janesville Furniture Company have by the sale increased their stock, and are enabled to offer better facilities for their patrons, and M. Hanson & Co., can now throw their whole energy into the manufacture of their goods, for which there is such an increasing demand.

-The Sixth Battalion of Scots who visitgames and pienic to be held at Des Plaines to-morrow. The Scots appreciated the kindness shown them while here, and this is but one of the many ways in which they reciprocate. The invitations thus extended by Capt. D. H. Bremmer in behalf of his company, wil be responded to in person by some of the recipients. -The neatest portable force pump we have yet seen is being introduced in the city by agents. The pump is very simple in construction, and easy to operate, and will throw a strong stream fifty feet or more. It is a great convenience for any and every household, being useful for watering plants and flowers, washing windows and carriages, and in case of fire would prove no little help. With all its strength and force it is light in weight, easily carried about, and its price, $1.75, is such as to place the pump within the reach of all. Those who see it work do not hesitate in ordering one, for its merits are self-evident.

-George Russell had his dog stolen Saturday night. There is a difference of opinion as to whether a dog is property or not, and courts have given opposite will remain a month. He is one of the decisions. If a dog is not property, the taking of one is not stealing. In this case the chain and the collar were taken lakes. with the dog, and as a chain and a collar are surely recognized in law as property, warrant was issued for the supposed stealer of the dog, charging him with the larceny of one dog collar and one chain. The accused is a young man named Ed. Lahey, living near the Ley. den house. Marshal Hogan went out there yesterday, and secured the collar and chain, the property alleged to be stolen, and as both collar and chain were attached to the dog, the officer had to bring the canine along also, which he did. The young man's case is to come up in the Municipal court next Satur-

THE CATHOLIC JUBILEE. The regular services constituting the ubilee being held at St. Patrick's church are of special interest to all of that faith, and are being well attended. This morning Rev. P. F. Petitt, of Madison, preached. This evening, there will be preaching by Rev James Cleary, of Kenosha. To-morrow morning Rev. M. Taugher, of Delavan, will preach, and in the evening, Rev. Thomas Fagan, of Bay View. Thursday morning Rev. James Keenan, of Foud du Lac, will preach.

THE MILITARY.

The last meeting of the Janesville Guards at the old armory will be held Thursday night. It is desired that every member shall be present, as business of importance is to be transacted, and at the close of the meeting the Guards will march to their new armory, and take possession thereof. The Guards have had several new members added to their numbers lately, and others are contemplating the matter. The benefit of military training for the young is apparent to all. The physical value of the drill of the young soldier, and the trimming away of awkwardisms. It toaches the restless to stand still, to keep their hands in the right place; it cultivates the love of system and order, and makes even stern discipline attractive. A school of the soldier for new recruits is to be opened as soon as the company get settled in their new quarters, and this will be under the immediate charge of Captain Smith, who is a most excellent drill master. Those who join the company now will have the benefit derived from going into the Guards with the present large recruit squad,

BRING ON YOUR STOCK.

The officers of the Rock county Agricultural Society have concluded to hold their grounds open on Saturday the 17th. after the fair is over, for the sale of stock of all kinds. This is a good idea and will be the means of giving all the farmers and others in Rock county a chance to bring in what they have to sell. It will cost them nothing as there will be no charge for entry or gateage on that day, and everybody is welcome to come and buy and sell anything they choose. It is hoped that this experiment will prove a

Those interested in the cold-water work began gathering here to-day to join. in the convention to be held this evening and to-morrow, in accordance with the call issued by Chairman J. C. Plumb, in pursuance of a plan of action decided upon by the mass meeting at Clear Lake one year ago.

Among those who arrived to-day were Mr. A. Paxton, the general agent of the Citizens' League, Chicago, and C. M. Albenson, the agent of the same Leaguefor the north side in Chicaco. This League is not a probibition movement, but is organized for securing the enforcement of the present license law, and ospecially the prevention of sales to minors and inebriates. Mr. Albenson will be remembered here as the one who collected evidence for the pros ecution of those selling liquor without a license in Edgerton. Mr. Paxton, too, is an carnest worker for the League, and has brought many violators of law to justice. He has the reputation of being a very interesting speaker, and is announced for an address to-morrow afternoon, and it is thought that arrangements can be made for having him give an address to-morrow evening, relating his experiences in trying to get the present laws onforced.

Hon, S. D. Hastings, another prominent in the temperance cause, will also oin in the doings of the convention. This afternoon there was a conference simply in the parlors of the Baptiet church. This evening at the Congregational church, Rev. E. L. Eaton, of Madison, will give an address on "The Reformatory and Educational Influence of Law, and T. D. Kanouse, Worthy Chief Templar, will follow with an address on "The Shadow of Death."

To-morrow sessions will be at the Congregational church, the following being the programme:

9:20 A. M.—Questions: What are we doing and what can we do for our foreign born citizens?
10:20 A. M.—The relation of Woman Suffrage to the Temperance cause. Mrs. J. T. Dow. Cooksville, Wis. Discussion.
2:30 P. M.—Our Present Laws in Relation to the Liquor Traffic, Rev. O. G. May, Fulton, and Andrew Paxton, Esq., Chicago.
3:20 P. M.—Probibition versus License, Rev. Jno. Makean, Beloit.

This afternoon's session was devoted mainly to organization, the convention being called to order by J. C. Plumb Captain Isaac Miles was chosen chairman and J. C. Plumb secretary. Roy. G. W. Lawrence offered prayer in opening the proceedings.

The following committees were appointed: PERMANENT ORGANIZATION-J. Suth-
